"The Urban Naturalist" is a start at describing the Urban Biome and what organisms would be found in such a biome. In this way the Urban settings should all share some common species and Steven Garber does his best to identify some of these common species and discusses why they should do well in these settings and why the Norway Rat and Black Rat are found in our cities and not the native north american species. Of course, some of this is moot, because Garber is working on an update and is curious about people's thoughts on the subject. Anyway, about the current edition: Garber describes the kinds of plants, animals, and insects I debated the stars on this. The University of Chicago Press. Books Division.
